St. Marcus is looking for a worship and special events production manager.

Diverse worship experiences are at the core of St. Marcus Ministries. We connect people to Jesus and to others in joyful love and service. The production manager supports excellence in audio and visual communication while acting as a hub for large events. This requires a knack for technology and a gospel-driven heart.

The most important characteristic of our production team is flexibility. St. Marcus runs the gamut when it comes to musical styles. Our job is to craft an atmosphere where diverse, scriptural, inspiring events can be enjoyed by all.

A successful Production Manager will: be available on weekends and in the evenings, understand how to run a soundboard, find ways to keep our creatives happy, take ownership of all sound and lighting equipment on both campuses, manage a budget and draft a five-year worship technology plan, build simple user documents to make sound/lighting more accessible to event planners, support unified church and school events, be capable of delegating, act as the hub of a community of people who happily serve and suggest ways to best use media.

This is an entrepreneurial position with room for input and shifts in responsibility.

You're good at

- Using logic and solving problems
- Social skills: Motivating and communicating within a team
- Working independently toward common goals
- Maintaining your personal relationship with God

Extra value is added by

- 2 years or more employment in live production
- Experience in visual presentation including ProPresenter
- Knowledge of the Adobe Creative Suite
